

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An immune response to an antigen in a host is elicited by intranasal administration to the host an antigen coupled to a targeting moiety generally a 5 monoclonal antibody or fragment thereof, specific for surface structures of antigen-presenting cells, such as class I or class II MHC cells, B-cells, T-cells, dendritic cells and CD4⁺ cells.